Adults are obviously more intelligent than children, right? Well, don't just blindly answer "yes" __ 11 __. Research has suggested there are multiple areas where children may be more __ 12 __ of performing better than adults. Below are a couple of these areas.

A. Children tend to learn through __ 13 __. Let's say a child cannot immediately see a solution to a problem. He or she will likely test out some __ 14 __ methods to get around the problem until finding one that works. By contrast, an adult may waste precious time on a mental __ 15 __ of the problem.

B. Similar to the first point, children are not afraid to ask questions and seek __ 16 __ if they don't know the answer to something. A child who continually asks "why" questions is __ 17 __ tiresome. However, children __ 18 __ on such questions in order to acquire knowledge. __ 19 __ annoying, the fact that children ask these questions so frequently is something that adults could learn from.

In summary, when faced with a problem, an adult may consider __ 20 __ that a child might take to find a solution. In some situations, a more childlike view can be extremely helpful.

三、篇章結構(1 小題，每格 2 分，共 8 分)

- (A) However, that all changed one day when I met a shy student called Jenna.
(B) I felt emotional and thankful for Jenna because she had taught me how to think differently and how to be a more understanding teacher.
(C) I finally understood and knew that my methods had to change.
(D) Early on when I hadn't been teaching for long, many students would write to me to say that my classes had helped them communicate more effectively.

As a teacher with many years' experience, I have learned a lot from my students. I teach high-school English and have often enjoyed teaching classes by involving students in discussions. My style has led to positive results; many of my students have gone on to study at famous universities. __ 21 __ They also said that the books we had read were very meaningful to them. I was so glad to hear this and didn't think about changing my methods. __ 22 __ Jenna was always very quiet during class, and at first, I thought that she wasn't reading the books or wasn’t paying attention. Whenever I called on her, she seemed very nervous and spoke only a few words. I had no choice but to give her low grades for discussion. However, one day while grading our first exam, I noticed that Jenna had performed the best out of everyone in the class. She had obtained 100 percent! I was confused, so I decided to talk to Jenna after class the next day. I asked her why she never talked in class, and she told me that she had always felt uncomfortable in large groups. With tears in her eyes, she said that she was sorry for not speaking more. She said that she would freeze up whenever a discussion started.   23   I gave Jenna tips on how to practice speaking at home every day, and I also started to include more written quizzes in my classes to let Jenna show her talent. After a few weeks, I noticed that Jenna had begun to share her knowledge with her classmates.   24   Jenna and I remain friends to this day, even though she graduated long ago. Not all students are the same, so teachers should adopt a variety of methods to help everyone succeed.
