六、 閱讀測驗(1 小題，每格 2 分，共 8 分)

When we think of people who have contributed* greatly to a culture, usually artists, writers, or musicians come to mind. But since food is also a big part of culture, we mustn't forget about the people who have created delicious dishes. One such person is the legendary ban-doh chef Lin Tian-sheng.

Born in 1934, Lin began to learn the art of cooking at the age of 12, when he started helping out a chef. His years of experience in the kitchen gradually led him to develop his own ideas about cooking. As a ban-doh chef, Lin had a method for every step of the cooking process. His ingredients were always bought on the day of the feast to ensure freshness, and because he wanted the best quality for his dishes, he never considered the cost. Over 20 years ago, when Taiwan held its first culinary exhibition*, officials asked Lin to prepare dishes for a huge feast. Lin was also famous for his “Feast for the Emperor*” banquet in 1998. He created 80 courses, which were served over an eight-hour period.

The master chef passed away in 2010 at the age of 78. Since then, his son, Chef Lin Ming-tsan, has followed in his father's footsteps and kept the tradition alive.
