- (A) He walked well enough to be selected for Israel’s team for the 1972 Olympic games in Munich, Germany.
- (B) Ladany survived only by jumping off of a balcony.
- (C) When he was five, his country was invaded by Germany, and he and his family escaped to Hungary.
- (D) His story inspires others to carry on in the face of hardship and never give up hope.
- (E) There, many of his family members died.

Shaul Ladany was born to a Jewish family in Yugoslavia in 1936. Unfortunately for him and millions of other Jewish people in Europe, this was only a few years before Nazi Germany began the Holocaust*. ____21____ However, three years later, his family was captured by the Germans and sent to the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp* in northern Germany. ____22____ While he was eventually rescued by Americans in 1944, Ladany was changed by the experience. His family moved to Israel in 1948, after the war, and Ladany developed a passion for running and walking. He trained harder and harder. ____23____ In Munich, Ladany would have to endure* another terrible event. A group of Palestinian terrorists killed a dozen people at the Olympics, mostly Israelis. ____24____ He still competed in his race-walking event and came in nineteenth place. When some Germans praised him for his German language ability, he explained: “I learned it well when I spent a year in Bergen-Belsen.” People like Ladany are living examples of human potential and strength.

Part IV. Mixed-format Question 8%

Dear Editor:

Last week, in the Orange Daily, there was an article about Shakespeare University having problems with not being very disabled friendly. I have further news for the Orange Daily: It's not just Shakespeare University. Many of the problems listed in the article are also present in our town and surrounding towns.

To begin with, there are not many disabled-accessible apartments available. Most of the buildings are said to be disabled accessible, but one person arrived only to find that the apartments still had to be accessed via stairs and that the buildings were not equipped with elevators. Plus, many hallways are so narrow that the people with disabilities may find it difficult to move through them.

Of course, parking spaces for cars with disabled plates are few and far between and difficult to find, and there are even fewer spaces for cars that need a huge area to accommodate wheelchair loading and unloading. Also, crosswalks are too long and do not provide sufficient time for an "able-bodied" person to cross without having to run, let alone a disabled person.

Even worse, buses refuse wheelchair users if their only two accessible seats are already occupied, but these seats may be filled by people with strollers or "able-bodied" people who do not want to move an inch.

I could talk on and on about these awful situations, which have affected my life since I've been in a wheelchair. People making policies about these issues, regarding space and transportation, should spend some time in a wheelchair to know just what problems 15% of the locals experience while living here. This situation will only worsen as many of us age. Please do something. Don't just talk the talk. Make sure to also walk the walk.

Troubled Resident,
Jay Lee
