(1-4) The little girl sat on the bench. She stared into the distance while other kids ran happily on the playground with their parents. I went over to ask why she was alone. Emma, the little girl, said she lived near the park. “Daddy used to bring me here to play,” she paused. “But Mommy said he went to a faraway place.” I listened in silence, looking for words to comfort her. I happened to have drawing paper and crayons with me, so I asked her to draw anything she wanted.

Emma’s mother showed up ten minutes later. We exchanged greetings, and as Emma was deep into her drawing, her mother revealed that Emma’s dad had recently passed away. Suddenly Emma held her drawing up and shouted, “Mommy, look! It’s Daddy and us.” It was two tall stick figures and one short stick figure holding hands. Emma’s mom hugged her as she said, “I miss your daddy, too. Let’s talk more about him whenever we think about him.” They went home hand in hand, just like in the drawing.

1. What did Emma draw?
(A) Her father and mother. (B) A hand holding another one.
(C) Some sticks and numbers. (D) Her family hand in hand.

(C) He’s at the park with her. (D) He’s waiting at home.
4. What does the phrase in silence mean?
(A) loudly (B)happily (C) sadly (D) quietly

(5-8) All Bud wanted to do was talk to his wife Betty. They had been married for 56 years, until she passed away. As a way to remember her, Bud bought a park bench in her name.

Every day, Bud would visit the bench with some flowers and tell her about his day. But one winter, heavy snow covered the park. The snow was so thick that Bud could only drive close to the bench and talk to Betty from his car. However, two park workers, Jared and Kevin, noticed Bud. They had seen him many times before and were touched that he would still visit even when he couldn’t make it to the bench. So they decided to do something about it.

The next time Bud showed up, Jared and Kevin had cleared all the snow to Betty’s bench. They wanted to make sure Bud could still visit his wife every day. And they promised to keep the path clear for him all winter.

5. Who were Jared and Kevin?
(A) They sold park benches. (B) They were Betty’s coworkers.
(C) They took care of the park. (D) They were house cleaners.

(17-20) Most people think that winning the lottery makes them happy. Many people dream of winning the lottery. They think even if the lottery money can't solve all their problems, at least it can solve a lot of them. It can sure help cut the worries about the house, cars, and other bills. It is interesting that people think that money would bring happiness, but they never really think about the negative(負面的) side of it. Actually, there are many problems associated*(和.....有關)with winning a lottery, especially for those from a poor background. They may not have proper money management skills.

Many researches have shown that winning the lottery can change a person's lifestyle a lot, but it can't change who you are. It is true that if you are happy before winning the lottery money, then you'll be happy afterwards, but if you are an unhappy person before winning the lottery money, giant winnings will change nothing but the amount of money you have.

17. The word "afterwards" in the second paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.
(A) early (B) middle (C) between (D) later
