The Internet holds an almost endless amount of information. It is an incredibly powerful to find the answer to whatever question you may have. Nevertheless, information can be false just as much as it can be true. The Internet itself cannot filter out the lies from the truth. Thus, it is very easy to read and believe incorrect information online.	same story. And finally, just use some common sense. After all, octopuses live in the ocean, not in forests, right?
When we hold false beliefs, we can end up making decisions which harm us or others. For example, a mother may choose not to vaccinate her children owing to misinformation online. This is why it is important for us to not blindly trust whatever we read on the Internet. It is also equally important for us to fact-check news we read online by doing thorough research. It is our personal responsibility to be certain that we do not fall victim into fake news.	6. What is the best title for the passage? (A) An Amazing Octopus (B) How to Write a News Article (C) Get Your News on the Internet (D) Keep an Eye on Fake News 7. According to the passage, why is the “fake news” trend getting stronger? (A) The sources of the news are controlled by the government. (B) People become more likely to get news from the Internet. (C) Reporters are not as careful and critical as they used to be. (D) A group of researchers are spreading fake news.

4. What is the meaning of the word “thorough”? (A) 疫苗 (B) 透過 (C) 仔細的 (D) 穿越	Water is a major component of the human body. Lack of water can affect bodily functions. The body continuously loses water through daily activities and must make up for this loss through food such as vegetables and fruits, and beverages such as soda and milk. Water, which is calorie free, is the healthiest drink.
5. What does the word “fact-check” mean? (A) 事實核查 (B) 疫苗 (C) 仔細 (D) 支票	Men need 13 cups of water per day and women need nine. Water requirements depend on activity level, health, and climate. If you are doing exercises, you need to drink an extra two cups of water. For intense exercise, such as road cycling or marathon running, you need even more. Sport drinks are one way to replace sodium and water lost through sweat. In dry and hot weather, the body must have enough water to keep cool. Moreover, in mountains of over 2500 meters, people breathe faster, so they require five cups of water more than usual.
These days, more and more people are getting their news from the Internet. Because of this, we have seen the rise of the “fake news” trend. In short, fake news can be a story or a piece of information which is not true or only partly true. For instance, a group of researchers once did an experiment in which they made up a non-existent octopus living in trees, and most people who were exposed to the information did not question its accuracy. Sharing fake news stories like this causes them to spread, making more people believe them.	People suffering from fever should also take in additional fluids to balance water loss. Pregnant or breast-feeding women need large amounts of water, too. Doctors advise mothers-to-be to drink ten cups of water daily and women who are breast-feeding 14 cups per day. All in all, water needs differ according to various factors and drinking proper amounts of water is key to good health.
Here are a few tips for spotting fake news. First, do not believe everything you read on the Internet. Instead, be as critical and careful as you can. Second, check the source of the news. Make certain the author or the website where the news is shown is reliable. Third, see if other respected news sites are running the	11. - As E-commerce has become a global economic trend, people are buying more products than even before through the Internet. According to the statistics of AC Nielsen Corporation, a fifty-three percent of Taiwanese have bought something electronically, which makes Taiwan the second largest place worldwide in terms of the number of online shoppers. Store owners are worried the growing amount of online sales will hurt their businesses. This has led traditional stores to seek new ways to keep their customers loyal.
- Experts say traditional stores can keep their customers by selling goods which buyers may want to taste and see, or feel the material and try on before purchasing. The stores can also offer services to instantly set up or repair electronic products. Besides, stores can offer things which are hard to ship, or provide goods to buyers more quickly than online stores. Experts say traditional stores offer the unique personal interactions and social experiences which most people enjoy. Lots of emotions can occur in the final buying decision. Oftentimes, you need that last sense of “Wow, this is exactly what I want!” before you are ready to pay, and you cannot always get that online.
16. Why do traditional stores seek new ways to keep their customers?
 (A) They do not know how to shop electronically. (B) They want to be part of the E-commerce trend.
 (C) They are worried about the growing amount of online sales. (D) The market researchers tell them to do so.
17. According to the first paragraph, which of the following is not true?
 (A) Nowadays, people are buying more products through the Internet. (B) Taiwan has the second largest number of online shoppers in the world. (C) E-commerce is gradually replacing traditional stores. (D) E-commerce produces fifty-three percent of global earnings.
18. What is the advantage of traditional stores?
 (A) Buyers can feel the material and try on before purchasing. (B) Buyers receive shipments more quickly than online shopping. (C) Buyers can choose any time to get on the Web and shop. (D) Buyers can compare prices from different online vendors.
19. Compared with online shopping, traditional stores can offer _____
 (A) consumer reviews quickly. (B) more variety of goods to choose from.
 (C) instant personal services. (D) shopping at any time of the day and night.

20. What can infer from the conclusion?
 (A) Consumers make their final buying decision based on economic trends. (B) With traditional shopping, customers are more emotionally involved in making the final buying decision. (C) Saving money is the first priority when buyers make the final decision. (D) Since people enjoy the unique social experiences offered by traditional stores, traditional shopping will dominate the future market.
