二、綜合測驗（5 題，一題 2 分，共 10 分）

For decades, marketing teams have understood the importance of support from public figures. Brands pour millions into finding the right celebrities to __26__. Sales of a sneaker model, for example, will soar after a famous basketball player wears it. However, with the popularity of social media, nearly anyone can become an influencer, someone who has influence and is able to call for the actions of others. __27__ we see influence all the time, with popular bloggers, vloggers, and key opinion leaders (KOLs) changing the course of a product's popularity with as short as a one-minute video.

But people have gradually grown tired of and are cynical __28__ influencers. It's hard to believe the enthusiasm when so many people recommend products that are being paid to sponsor. Many viewers take the influencers' reviews with a grain of salt. Deinfluencing takes this idea and turns it on its head. This new trend has influencers talk about everything they don't like about products. One blogger said that, at first, she was scared that brands would be angry and they might hate her. Instead, it led to new work, especially from __29__ that wanted her to negatively review their rivals.

At the moment, deinfluencers are seen as more honest than influencers. However, whether the post is negative or not, viewers should still __30__ that these bloggers are often paid by companies. Keep this in mind, and remember not to believe everything said online.

- () 26. (A) host variety shows (B) throw opening parties
 (C) promote their products (D) celebrate their anniversaries
- () 27. (A) First (B) In fact (C) On one hand (D) Meanwhile
- () 28. (A) of (B) with (C) behind (D) about
- () 29. (A) companies (B) products (C) celebrities (D) influencers
- () 30. (A) aware (B) unaware (C) be aware (D) aware of
