Once, there were two cats born in the same house. One day, a boy came and took the first cat home. This cat lived in a big family full of love. The second cat was taken by an old man who always shouted and threw things when he was angry.

The first cat grew up playful and kind. It often played with children and learned to trust people. The second cat became quiet and afraid of everything. It ran away and hid when someone came close.

One day, the two cats met in a park. The kind cat walked up and said "hello." But the scared cat ran away. A little girl nearby asked, "Why did your friend run?" The kind cat said, "We grew up in different homes. How we are treated changes who we become."
