I remember the first time that I spoke at a TED event. To begin with, I was nervous because each TED Talk can be only 18 minutes long, and I was unsure how (21) in everything that I wanted to say. My talk, (22), turned out to be a wonderful experience.

I had heard of TED before, but it wasn't until I was invited to give a talk that I discovered that the organization was leaving its audiences (23) inspired after every event. The TED organization has been providing a platform for sharing important ideas since 1984, when it was founded. TED stands for "(24), Entertainment, Design." Its focus was to invite speakers from these three professional fields to give talks and share their knowledge (25) audiences. However, soon after, TED events began to also include experts from a range of other fields. Then, in 2007, TED.com was launched online, enabling people worldwide to view TED Talks (26) so that everyone would have an opportunity to gain knowledge.

Since 2007, the collection of talks on TED.com has continued to grow. What's more, the experts invited to speak have included many well-known names. One example is Bill Gates, who founded Microsoft. Another is (27) chef Jamie Oliver, who has presented his art of cooking on numerous TV shows. (28) is James Cameron, the director of the movies Aliens and Avatar.

When I gave my first TED Talk back in 2015, I was amazed by the number of people in the audience (29) all the positive responses that I later received online. It is clear (30) millions around the world have benefitted from knowledge gained by watching TED Talks. Watching one of these talks is surely one of the most useful things that someone can do in their free time.

Have you ever sat beside someone on a flight who had to use the restroom constantly? Or maybe you sat beside someone (31) bad breath the whole time? (32), you can likely understand the woes* of flying. Here are some foods you should avoid if any of the above situations (33) to you.

(34), it's probably a good idea to avoid that garlic bagel at Starbucks before a flight. (35) a chemical reaction, garlic can take nearly twenty-four hours to digest*. Although a solution (36) this might be gum, not all odors can be removed. Next, when a flight gets rocky, our first instinct* might be to reach for that vodka. Alcohol* might seem like a great way to relax (37) a flight. (38), it's best to put it down! Your body doesn't work the same way up in the air, and alcohol only increases the risk of blood circulation problems. Lastly, while it may seem appealing, avoid all caffeine*. Caffeine (39) a diuretic*, so a few hours into the flight you will be running constantly to the bathroom. Additionally, this sudden rise in caffeine could (40) be bad for your health for it can cause headaches or muscle aches. Now that you know about these tips, you can just sit back and enjoy your flight! 註： woe 困擾 digest 消化 instinct 本能 alcohol 酒 caffeine 咖啡因 diuretic 利尿藥
