Have you ever heard of orangutan boxing*? It's a cruel type of sport in which orangutans are dressed in shorts and boxing gloves and trained to ___(35)___ one another in so-called boxing matches. ___(36)___, what happens behind the scenes is truly depressing. Usually, these orangutans are snatched* as babies from the wild ___(37)___ they can normally roam free. Then they are ___(38)___ by trainers who may cage, beat, and starve them into performing for an audience. They are forced to participate in these boxing matches every day, throwing kicks and punches for about thirty minutes at a time. The audience members, most of ___(39)___ are unaware of the pain these orangutans go through, watch in pleasure and excitement. And many of them even believe that the orangutans are having fun, when in reality they may be suffering from cruel training practices. We should do something to put an end to this cruel, meaningless sport.

Sadly, animals tied to the tourism industry are often mistreated*. For a start, they are denied freedom and separated from their families or groups. Often, these animals, ___(40)___ are quite friendly and clever, are also forced to perform tricks in shows for tourists. In addition, they are made ___(41)___ in horrible conditions. These practices are cruel and inhumane* and often involve people profiting from activities that are against the law.

The world's last sea turtle farm in the Cayman Islands, for example, is a place where ___(42)___ animals suffer terribly for the sake of tourism. ___(43)___ to stay locked up in small, dirty ponds all day, the turtles there must endure very poor living conditions. ___(44)___, the management allows tourists to handle the turtles, which is very stressful for these shy, timid creatures. ___(45)___, when sea turtles (especially babies) are handled, they usually get very agitated* and tend to struggle. Thus, they are often dropped and injured. This further contributes to their misery and can even cause ___(46)___ damage from which they never recover.

In other words, while tourists are having a lot of fun ___(47)___ turtles, these poor creatures are enduring a lot of stress and ill treatment. It is thus high time that people ___(48)___ the situation. The best solution is to stay away ___(49)___ animal centers like these and stop supporting them. No tourists, no torture.

- (A) The rise of the wildlife tourism industry has led to not only increased suffering for animals, but also environmental destruction and a reduction of already endangered animal populations.
 (B) Moreover, the animals who are forced to do tricks for tourists are often beaten badly in the learning process.
 (C) To keep wild animals like tigers safe for tourists, their keepers might give them drugs to make them calm, and chain them to the floor.
 (D) Wildlife tourism in countries such as Thailand has become especially popular, where thousands of people visit “tiger parks” that contain tame tigers that people can pet and take pictures with.

With rising numbers of tourists around the world, along with the rise in social media, we are seeing growing numbers of people who engage in wildlife tourism. __50__ In reality, wildlife tourism has caused serious problems for the local wildlife. Because of high demand, animals like tigers and elephants are often captured by trappers and forced into a life of misery in order to make money from tourists. __51__ However, these drugs are bad for the health of the animals, who are also often mistreated by their keepers. __52__ Animals are also frequently beaten by their keepers in order to pose for pictures with visitors. __53__ If you enjoy traveling and like seeing wildlife, please be sure to avoid the wildlife tourist industry that profits from the suffering of animals. It would be better to visit more eco-friendly places, such as zoos that have a reputation for taking good care of animals, and promoting conservation efforts in the natural environment.

California governor Gavin Newsom signed a law that would stop wild animals from performing in circuses throughout the state in 2019. By doing so, it joined Hawaii and New Jersey as the three states in the US to end wild animals in the circus entirely. Under this new law, wild animals such as monkeys, elephants, bears, and tigers would be given protection from being used for “entertainment.” The law was originally proposed because of the sad conditions these animals faced. Locked up in dark, dirty, and cramped living environments, they were often beaten using whips or electrical shocks. These acts forced them into “training” through stress and fear. Although this is a small step, there is still much to be done. Unfortunately, the law does not mention other animals such as dogs, cats, and horses at rodeo shows. However, as long as California is leading the way with this law, other states could follow in its footsteps. It is our hope that it will inspire others to do the same.

54. Why did the California governor sign a new law?
 (A) He hoped to stop wild animals from being traded illegally.
 (B) He hoped to protect the habitats of these wild animals.
 (C) He hoped to put an end to the cruel treatment of wild animals in circuses.
 (D) He hoped to reduce the use of all animals in the entertainment industry.
55. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a way that circuses use to deal with wild animals?
 (A) Animals are locked up in a tiny area. (B) They provide very little food for the animals.
 (C) They whip the animals to make them tame. (D) They beat the animals to force them into training.
56. What is probably the author’s expectations for the circus animals in the future?
 (A) Only dogs, cats, and horses will be allowed to perform in circuses.
 (B) More officials will support the use of new medicine to treat animals.
 (C) More people will feel motivated to fight for the rights of wild animals.
 (D) More people will be willing to donate money to build animal shelters for wild animals.

Have you ever heard of greyhound racing? It's a sport in which greyhound dogs race one another on a specially designed track. Although its popularity has decreased over time, there were 18 tracks operating in the US in 2019. But is there anything wrong with these races?

Well, the greyhounds often have painful injuries while racing, such as broken legs, heart attacks, injuries of the spine, or even worse, broken necks. What's more, they live in horrible conditions, often confined in cages for up to 23 hours a day or kept outside in the cold and rain. Besides, many of the dogs carry fleas and other bugs and may lack basic care and human affection. Although these animals can live up to 13 years, they are retired early at even 18 months to 5 years old and then put to death because they can no longer make money for their owners. The animal cruelty caused by this sport is unbearable, and something needs to be done to stop it.

57. What is the passage mainly about?

- (A) The bad living conditions of greyhounds. (B) The history of greyhound racing in America.
(C) The painful training process of greyhound racing. (D) The unfortunate fate of greyhounds in races.

58. Which of the following statements about greyhound racing is correct?

- (A) Greyhounds may suffer many physical injuries while racing.
(B) Greyhound racing is gaining widespread popularity in the US.
(C) These greyhound races often go wrong, injuring many people in the audience.
(D) Greyhound owners train the greyhounds by purposefully keeping them in the cold.

59. According to this passage, what is the main cause of greyhounds being retired early or even dying young?

- (A) Bug or flea problems. (B) Lack of human affection.
(C) Inability to make money. (D) Being confined in cages for a long time.
