- Joanne Rowling knows what it's like to fail. As a young adult, she found herself facing her worst fears when she was a single parent without a job. One of the few things that brought her joy during these difficult times was writing. Joanne found time to write when her baby slept, and eventually finished a book. Even after being turned down by many different companies, she continued to believe in herself and her writing.
- After many years of struggle, Joanne's book was finally released and became very successful. She is now known and loved around the world as J. K. Rowling, creator of the Harry Potter books. We can all learn from Joanne's experience that no matter what your dream is, don't let your fears or failures stop you. Even when times are tough, don't give up. If you do, you'll never know what a success you could have been!
